FOR ENDINGOnly One Witness Put on in Thaw Trial To-day

DR. HAMILTON ON STAND

After He Was Dismissed, It Was Announced That the Defense Had Nothing More to Add—Delmas
Starts Argument.

New York, April 8.—Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton was called to the stand by the defense when the trial of Dr. Hamilton was resumed this morning. His examination was brief and at 10:30 the defense, to the surprise of all, rested. When court opened, Justice Fitzgerald confirmed the report of the lunacy commission and directed that the trial proceed.

The effort of the defense to have Dr. Hamilton say he considered Thaw insane at the time he shot White, was blocked by Jerome's objections, and Delmas asked a whispered consultation with his colleagues, excused him. Justice Fitzgerald then intervened to say that he wished the taking of testimony to cease. This was acceptable to counsel. Delmas asked until two o'clock for the final preparation of his summing-up speech. The request was granted and a recess was taken until that time.

Justice Fitzgerald told the jury that when the court reconvened they would be kept together as during the first days of the trial.

The sudden closing of the case today means that it will probably go to the jury Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Delmas expected to take all the afternoon and a good part of tomorrow. If so, Jerome probably will not begin until Wednesday. He is likely to ask Justice Fitzgerald will deliver the charge as soon as Jerome finishes.

Most of the members of the jury who have Thaw's fate in their hands have had previous experience in criminal cases. Three have sat in homicide cases before and eight have been jurors in criminal cases where the charge was other than murder. Only one man never has been a juror previously. Of the three men who have sat in homicide cases, one was on a jury that brought in a verdict of acquittal; the second served in two cases, in each of which the verdict was murder in the first degree; and the third man was on a jury that brought in a manslaughter verdict.

It was explained that this action was not taken to induce Thaw's wife to tell her story on the stand, but was merely in keeping with Mrs. Thaw's confidence in her daughter-in-law, on the basis that she and Harry intended to turn over a new leaf and "live quietly."

Byhl, president of the Byhl Malleable Iron Works at Detroit, president of the Detroit National bank and also of the firm of Parke Davis & company, chemical and drug manufacturers, dropped dead yesterday on the street near the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where he had been a guest. Death was due to apoplexy.

Mr. Byhl was one of a group of steel magnates, multimillionaires, and prominent in banking circles in the middle west and in the east. The body will be sent to Detroit for interment.

Mr. Byhl was 64 years of age. Accompanied by his wife and granddaughter and his brother-in-law, F. H. Walker, and the latter's wife, Mr. Byhl arrived in this city from Boston Saturday night. The Walkers registered at the Holland house and Mr. Byhl with his wife and granddaughter went to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

After luncheon at one o'clock, Mr. Byhl, who appeared in good health and spirits, remained alone in hotel for a couple of hours talking with business associates. Shortly after three o'clock he told Mrs. Byhl that he felt like taking a walk. His wife decided to remain in her room. Mr. Byhl left the hotel and started along Thirty-fourth street, going toward Broadway, but in front of the Astor National bank, next door to the hotel, he fell dead on the sidewalk.

W. A. McCusker, of the Waldorf-Astoria, who was leaving the hotel at the time, saw Mr. Byhl fall and summoning assistance helped to carry the body into the hotel, where it was examined by physicians. The latter said that death followed a stroke of apoplexy and caused probably before the body touched the sidewalk.

MELANCHOLIA CAUSE
OF WOMAN'S SUICIDEMrs. Gertrude Burke of Lowell, Mass.,
Formerly of Vermont, Killed Herself Yesterday.

Lowell, Mass., April 8.—Mrs. Gertrude Burke, wife of Hon. C. Burke, committed suicide by shooting herself in the right side of the head at her home, 23 11th street shortly before 9 Sunday morning.

Mrs. Burke was born in Albany, Vt., her maiden name being Gertrude Dow. She was married to Mr. Burke in her native town, Dec. 23, 1851. Two children were born to them, George W., captain of last season's high school football team, and Julia Lillian, now a pupil in Rogers Hall school.

From the statement furnished by Dr. J. V. Mages, assistant medical examiner, it was learned Mrs. Burke had been ill with nervous prostration for some time, and also suffered from melancholia.

She was about the house as usual Saturday evening, and early Sunday morning appeared to be in the same condition she has been in for some months. She remained in her room after other members of the family came down stairs. Mr. Burke and his "nigger" were in the dining room, and George Burke, the son, was in a rear room on the same floor. A shot from a revolver was heard, and George rushed into the dining room believing it had been accidental. First there, the father and son then rushed up stairs and found Mrs. Burke lifeless on the floor.

Mrs. Burke, his son and daughter were overcome by the shock. When the death of Mrs. Burke became known many intimate friends hastened from all parts of Lowell to the house to tender their sympathy.

Mrs. Burke was a woman of gentle temperament and attended many gatherings here with her husband. She was greatly interested in his success, and to many intimate friends he often related how hard she worked to help him when he was beginning to practice law in Vermont.

Littleton, Mass., April 8.—Pleading with his assailant not to murder him, Charles F. Watts, a well known resident of this town, willingly gave up $80 to a man, thought to have been a former employe, who attacked Mr. Watts as he was closing his barn early yesterday. After being knocked down by the man, Mr. Watts told him to take the money and spare his life. Mr. Watts staggered into the house a few minutes later and fell unconscious on the kitchen floor. He recovered later, but for hours yesterday his condition was regarded as serious.

Mr. Watts told the authorities yesterday afternoon that he had just stepped into his barn yesterday morning when a man, who was apparently lying in wait for him, struck him several times over the head and shoulders. He returned the blow with the floor and then went soon thrown to the floor. Realizing that his assailant had him at his mercy, he told him where his money was in his vest pocket and asked him to take it and go. The man quickly rifled the pocket and ran out of the barn. Mr. Watts was then taken to the hospital and is now recovering.

Escape From Death

IN A MONTEPILIER SHOP

Went Down From Distance of Fifteen Feet and Pulled 400 Pounds of Castings onto Him—Got Fractured Collarbone.

Montpelier, April 8.—A fall down an elevator shaft at the Colton shops Saturday afternoon gave a fractured collarbone and great many bruises to Thomas Sheehan, an employe, and his escape from death is quite remarkable, especially since 400 pounds of castings fell upon him.

Sheehan had lowered the elevator to a level with the floor and then went after castings while he was gone some one raised the elevator, leaving the shaft open. Sheehan returned wheeling 400 pounds of castings. He was moving backwards and did not of course see the open shaft. Thinking that it remained as he left, he started to wheel his load onto the floor of the elevator, as he supposed. Instead of that he backed into the open space.

As he started to fall he retained his hold on the wheelbarrow, and pulled that to the bottom of the shaft, and the mass of castings fell on top of him. Fellow workmen found Sheehan at the bottom of the shaft. He was unconscious, and it was first thought that he was dead. He was partially covered with the castings. He was removed to his boarding place at the home of Mrs. Mary Gray on Winoski street. Dr. E. Colton was summoned, and the man was restored to consciousness. An examination showed that he had not sustained any internal injuries and aside from the fractured collarbone had not been seriously injured. It is considered wonderful that he was not killed in the accident.

Laconia, N. H., April 8.—The last obstacle in the way of the New Hampshire league was overcome Saturday, when the matter of obtaining the Franklin baseball grounds was satisfactorily arranged. The league will hold a schedule meeting Wednesday, at which time representatives from the Burlington and Barre-Montpelier, Vt., teams will be present to make application for admission to the league and definite action will be taken.

Manager Van Dusen of the Laconia club states that within the last week he has signed the following players: catcher, W. F. Hogan of Ashland, Mass.; first baseman, J. A. Ashland, independent; Waldorf of South Framingham and Jack Dyer, C. H. Bagley, a fast infielder who played with the East Rochester team last season, will cover third base. John A. Lacasse of Lawrence and Henry Dumbley of Boston university will fight it out for shortstop. James Wholly, last year's second baseman, will again hold down this bag. Carl Pease and Al Cook, former members of the Laconia club, will probably play in the outfield. The pitching staff is not yet completed, but will be arranged shortly.

A MEMORIAL PLACED.

And Pastor Recalls Need for Others at Universalist Church.

The services yesterday in the Universalist church were of special interest. The handsome new communion table, secured by the Young People's Christian Union with the Lucy Allen fund, had been placed. In his introductory remarks, the pastor said in part:

"Henceforth the communion service in this church will mean more than formerly to some of you. There will be before you that which is memorial of one who was very dear to a home in our midst and who is tenderly cherished by her friends and co-workers in the church. We must believe in memorials since they speak to us of those who no longer sit at our sides or move before our faces in the discharge of accustomed duties. The window back of the altar and before you ever in the house of worship here is a memorial to two ministers whose pastorates came together, one having caused the erection of this edifice and the other after him having done more than any besides, toward building up the spiritual temple within and about the material. It is because of this it is fitting in every feature of it, even to the place in relation to the whole room. They were teachers in his name to whom some yet living looked.

"Down now before the altar, on a level with the pews of the people, is that which is memorial of him who was our Elder Brother and of her who was disciple and was one among you, and the individual service shall even more symbolize and express this.

"And friends, there ought to be memorial windows along the sides. They, admitting the light, might be taking to us by day of those who were lights of the church and of the community, who were exemplary in their walk as citizens, and who are cherished; and by night, with the light within, the way-faring man might look to the church and see beautiful testimonies to the work of the church today largely lives. The living are not alone in supporting and carrying on the work of the church. The dead are to be reckoned as with us still. In cases wherein the families or near relatives have ceased, the society should assume the responsibility of expense. I know not, dear people, if you had thought of this. I have thought of it and have now said it."

The suggestion of the pastor was favorably commented upon, and it is probable that ere long there will be some memorial windows put in the church, the place of others which are in need of repairs. There were more members received into the church, making about fifty within a year.
